thanks, tim berners-lee; you seriously spilled a titanic can of worm beans 34 years ago; i get it, though: unexpectedly massive success in your mind, too; at first. anyhow, if not you, the beast could have used gopher or usenet instead.
re: synapse, i don't really want to get into the spam problems, etc.

way too disheartening! this is still supposed to be comedy. at least most open source devs are still trying really hard though: like all opsec, it's all exploits from all directions vs. all too small a team desperately trying not to miss any of what is presently known, while needing to think like zero-day prophets!

(profits! sup jay! say hi to kevin for me! respect) related: why do we continue to collectively do even worse than idly stand by the far too many current worldwide examples of imperialism, colonialism, and genocide?

perhaps we're just too afraid to divest and/or attempt all imaginable diplomatic methods of convincing everyone to finally stop hate in its tracks, considering risks of exposure of/by five eyes and all... since there's already more than one overseer network, might as well open source individual, voluntary, federated global mutual oversight, with clear and enforceable boundaries protecting individual safety and privacy. just a thought...

it's simple math: endless brainwash to the POWER of endless brainwash, a well known historical ouroboros... and i imagine that the POWER button for it all will forevermore be tucked away somewhere deep inside a hazardous and intentionally confusing maze of bunker vaults under the swiss alps, safeguarded by the UN security council's agreed-on guise of mutually assured destruction.

i beg all totalitarian psychopathic dictators for life (TP-DFL) to give it away, give it away, give it away, NOW, after being sufficiently reminded that the phrase "NO means NO!" is vastly more than the most important notion about sex: it corresponds with all forms of pain, including mind-fucks. mk-ultra is likely ongoing and evolving, in case you haven't wondered.

all will be revealed.
